

Elena Anosova

Out-of-the-way

29 September – 9 December 2018

Elena Anosova's artistic practices concentrate on topics of borders and isolation. Out-of-the-way is one of them. It is a story about a settlement in the extreme north of Russia founded by her ancestors more than 300 years ago. An isolated settlement, where the special relationship with nature, centuries-old traditions and myths are the inherent part of everyday life. A place where the fictional past is sometimes more important than reality.

Anosova's ancestors were hunters who occupied part of Siberia. They have settled on the Nizhnyaya Tunguska River on isolated land and founded a village with a name that roughly translates as "Island". Nowadays the population of the village is approximately one hundred adults and most of them are Anosova's distant relatives: those who are not brothers are related in a neighborly way. The life of this part of her family, namely her father's siblings and numerous cousins and nephews, has not changed for centuries. Modern civilization penetrates this remote land surrounded by pristine wilderness very slowly. The closest town is 300 km away, and the transport connection functions only in winter time. Local legends and traditions are still highly valued in the settlement.

Elena Anosova lives between Moscow and Irkutsk. Her work explores subjects of isolation and borders and has been critically acclaimed by media and institutions worldwide. She is the winner of multiple awards, including LensCulture Exposure Awards and World Press Photo. Her work has been exhibited during group and solo exhibitions in Russia, Japan, China, Turkey, Austria, Italy, the UK and the USA. She is a member of MAPS collective.

Prices include VAT. Frames, fitted with a mount and museum glass, may be purchased at an extra costs of €200, or €300 each for the larger sized prints. All photographs are available in both size editions.

The gallery is open 11am - 6pm Thursday-Saturday and by appointment. Please contact at: gallery@schiltpublishing.com / lilia@schiltpublishing.com or +31(0) 6 26 25 16 93
